Insects AND YOUR HEALTH

SELECT AND BEWARE

The most important people in all the world are the members of your own family, and rightfully so! It is therefore important that you cover all angles affecting their health and welfare. When a member of the family gets sick you can call a doctor . . . and chances are he can make them well again soon. But, wouldn't it be much better to prevent that disease rather than curing it? Most household pests are potential carriers of diseases. To help prevent diseases, get rid of household pests; select a service you know, beyond any doubt, will perform the service you need skillfully, efficiently, safely and at a fair price for the service performed.

COMPLETENESS

Here at Dodson Pest Control, we specialize in a complete service. We are staffed with professionals, experienced in all phases of pest control . . . from the outside to the inside . . . from rats and roaches to all household pests. No matter what the situation may be . . . we are prepared to offer dependable, efficient service. Protecting the health and welfare of your family is our business . . . our only business . . . and not a sideline.

Most readers of the Progressive Farmer know that Dr. Clarence Poe, Editor of this farm magazine passed away in early October. For 67 years Dr. Poe served as Editor of this popular farm publication. Recently, Mr. Joe Elliott, vice-president of Progressive Farmer, asked if we would call to your attention a plan for a living memorial to Dr. Poe. The plan simply asks if churches, school groups, home demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs and individual farm men and women will plant one or more crepe myrtle trees in honor of this man. This plant was loved by Dr. Poe and throughout his lifetime he encouraged its use. It is hoped that a record can be made of the number of crepe myrtles planted. We will try to keep this record for Appomattox County if you will let us know how many you have . . . planted. Crepe myrtles planted this spring should bloom this summer.

A great deal of effort is put into the control of forest fires and this is as it should be. Naturally losses from fire amount to .8 billion board feet of timber each year. But loss of timber from forest insects amounts to 7.2 billion board feet each year. Nine times more loss from insect than from fire.

Research is the key to progress in all fields. The weed using industry has lagged behind most all other industries in research effort. Today the stone and glass industry spends eight times as much for research as the wood products industry. This is an important reason why steel, aluminum, glass, concrete, bricks and plastics are being substituted for wood.

If we were to spend as much on wood research in Virginia as is spent proportionately nation-wide for all industry, we would be spending $15 million per year or an increase of 20 times what is now being done.

How do you handle timber sales for income tax purposes. It doesn't have to be used as ordinary income. However, no one wants to increase social security payments this is where it must be shown. Timber sales can be shewned on schedule D and pay on only 50 percent of the income. Actually there are two consideration: 1. Is timber sold as stumpage? 2. Is timber cut by the farmer? Space does not afford a detail discussion of this subject but think it over before filling your taxes.

Some interest has developed in the possibility of using urea as a source of N for winter applications. Those who support this idea argue that urea will not leach as readily as other forms of r because it must be connected to ommonian nitrogen and ammonium nitrogen can be held as a cation and would not leach as readily as nitrate nitrogen. This is quite true, but we would expect urea to give about the same result as water soluble, inorganic sources for two reasons. First, urea is hydrolized quite readily to ammonium carbonate. Second, ommonium nitrogen is connected to nitrate nitrogen by bacterial action. Therefore to make a long story short we would expect essentially the same leaching from urea as from water soluble, inorganic sources.

Local Dairy Queen Design Approved For Virginia

The Dairy Queen corporation of Virginia has approved the design of the Diary Queen at Appomattox as suitable for Dairy Queen installations throughout the state.

The local Diary Queen, in operation since the fall of 1964, is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Paulette.

Ballons & Bricks Used By MYF

by Henry Webber

The regular meeting of the Pinoy, Pamplin, Evergreen M.Y.F. was held on February 7, 1965 at Evergreen Methodist Church. The president, Victor Meadows, called the meeting to order. Devotions were read by Donna Smith. Henry Webber had the program for the evening. A skit describing two types of Christians when they were "in a pinch". The two objects used were a balloon and a brick. Kaern Smith was the "balloon Christian" and Martha Williams was the "brick" Christian. We would all like to be like the brick Christian instead of the balloon Christian. The second half of the program consisted of a Bible Quiz, with two teams and team one was the winner.

Since there was no business the meeting was adjourned to the basement for entertainment and refreshments.

Promising youngster

True of Thomas Alva Edison at fourteen. True today of the American electrical industry he founded.

You might think an industry generating over a trillion kilowatt-hours a year is already pretty well grown. But look again. You'll find it's still a seams-bursting youth. For with technical advances and lowering kilowatt-hour costs, you are encouraged to use electricity in many wonderful new ways.

Just a few years ago, the electrically-heated home was a dream. Today, there are over 1,800,000 such homes. And it is estimated that within 15 years 29,000,000 American families will be enjoying the supreme cleanliness, convenience and comfort of flameless electric heat . . . supplied by the electric industry's great, efficient generating stations. Promising youngster? You bet!
